Ingrain

Aperture envisions a dense waterfront promenade throughout Long Island City, of which the competition site is only the beginning. The competition program is broken up into two buildings, creating a pedestrian street that continues the motion set up by the city grid to connect the public to waterfront amenities and a new ferry terminal.